WHAT WEICITY DRIVE IS

Not a "cheaper drive" — a drive that shares well and connects to your business

WeiCity Drive is more than storage: sharing, chat, content and the marketplace live on the same platform. A customer who only needs a generic sync drive may be better served elsewhere; one who needs to send material to clients and control how it's accessed, or runs a WeiCity business, is better served here.

RM35
a year of the 30GB starter; upgrade any time

20GB
per-file limit; chunked direct upload, pause and resume

10TB
top self-serve plan (seven sizes from 30GB); 20TB+ tailored by sales

RM0
sharing controls, preview, Office editing — same features on free and paid

Ten differences — memorise this page

1 Consultant promo codes
First purchase at the code's promo price for the first year; or a free code for 30GB for a year.

2 Over quota is not deleted on the spot
Uploads pause, excess turns read-only; only after 24 months with no plan and repeated notices may it be reclaimed.

3 Seven sizes, 30GB to 10TB
30GB starter at RM35 a year; 512GB / 1TB in the middle.

4 Three-dimension sharing on every plan
Who can access · expiry · permissions, plus password, revoke and visit counts.

5 View-only down to the byte
Office / PDF render read-only, media via proxy, the original link never leaves.

6 Encrypted folders — even you need the password
Lock sensitive folders; recover via your verified email.

7 Files in chat never auto-expire
Send Drive files in chat; they open while the file and share exist.

8 Office editing in the browser
Word / Excel / PowerPoint, original format, high fidelity.

9 Connected to your WeiCity business
Post, sell, deliver orders and keep customers — one account.

10 A human to call
Local team, human support; big-volume needs get a custom plan.

Who it fits best

- SMEs: quotes, menus, contracts, deliverables
- Creators & trainers: courseware, video, materials
- WeiCity users: files in chat, no re-uploading
- Any volume: 30GB to 10TB, 20TB+ via sales

DIFFERENCES ① ②

Start from 30GB — and over quota is not deleted

The policies customers press on: how to get started, what it costs, and "what if I go over". WeiCity answers them clearly.

WeiCity Drive

30GB starter at RM35 a year (120GB at RM8.90 / mo), bought on the web — no need to go big up front; sharing controls, preview and Office editing are the same on every plan. Need more? On 512GB and up a consultant promo code gives first-time buyers a first-year promo price, or a free code gives 30GB for a year.

Don't say

"More free space than Google" — and don't quote a new account's free GB: each account's free base space is whatever its plans page shows. Promo codes renew at list price after year one, first purchase only, not on the starters — never "promo price forever".

What happens when you go over quota

STEP 1
New uploads pause
Existing files still download, preview and share; upgrade or trim and it resumes.

STEP 2
30-day grace
Repeated in-app and email reminders; renew or upgrade anytime.

STEP 3
Excess turns read-only
Randomly selected excess is archived, still retrievable.

STEP 4
Notices continue
Every notice leaves a provable mail record.

STEP 5
Only after 24 months
With no plan and notices unanswered, the portion above the account's available space may be deleted.

Available space untouched

Even after 24 months, only the portion above the account's available space (randomly selected) is reclaimed; the rest stays.

✅ Any plan switches it off

With any plan active, the "24 months before excess may be reclaimed" rule does not apply, even over quota.

↩ Three ways out

Subscribe to a plan that covers you, trim under your free allowance, or download what you need and tidy up.

Policy	WeiCity Drive	Google's official policy
When excess may be deleted	Only after 24 months with no plan and repeated notices; only the portion above the free allowance	Over quota 2+ years, content may be deleted
What is deleted	Only the excess; files within the free allowance and the account untouched	May affect all content and email sending
Paying users	Any active plan makes this clause moot	Per their own terms

* WeiCity's reclaim mechanism is not yet running; this states the policy in force (Drive Terms of Use, 2026-08-05). Competitor policies per their official pages.

DIFFERENCE ③

Seven sizes from 30GB to 10TB: buy what you actually use

No need to jump straight to a big plan: pick the size that fits the customer's real usage, upgrade any time and remaining value converts automatically. Yearly is roughly pay 10 months, use 12; on 512GB and up, first-time buyers also get a consultant's first-year promo price.

Size	Monthly	Yearly (per-mo.)	Good for	Consultant code
30GB	RM3.50	RM35 / yr ≈ RM2.92	Light personal use starter · yearly suggested	Not eligible
120GB	RM8.90	RM89 / yr ≈ RM7.42	Phone photos & everyday files starter	Not eligible
512GB	RM16.90	RM169 / yr ≈ RM14.08	Small-team files · a light step up	✓ first year
1TB	RM29.90	RM299 / yr ≈ RM24.92	Creators & small merchants	✓ first year
2TB	RM42.90	RM429 / yr ≈ RM35.75	Families & studios	✓ first year
5TB	RM97.90	RM979.90 / yr ≈ RM81.66	Heavy storage	✓ first year
10TB	RM194.90	RM1,949.90 / yr ≈ RM162.49	Professional archives	✓ first year

When customers bring up other drives

Say this

"Pick the size you actually need — no need to buy 2TB up front." "Yearly is cheaper than paying monthly for a year." If they insist on comparing, ask them to open both providers' current official pages side by side — we don't argue with stale competitor prices; we talk sharing control and business integration.

Don't say

"Cheaper than Google / Apple / Microsoft", "lowest price anywhere" · "yearly is ~17% below Google" (old price check, retired) · "more free space than Google" · "the bigger you buy, the cheaper per TB" · comparing the 30GB / 120GB starters with competitors · "the App costs the same as the web" · "unlimited traffic".

* Prices as displayed live on the wei.city plans page (October 2026 edition); web billing in MYR via Stripe. 5TB yearly RM979.90 and 10TB yearly RM1,949.90 are not exactly 10 × monthly. In-app prices are whatever the App Store / Google Play shows locally and may differ from the web; the 30GB / 120GB starters are web-only for now.

DIFFERENCE ④

One share form, three dimensions: who can access · expiry · permissions

Any file or folder becomes a share link in one tap, and visitors need no account to view. Controls that other drives split across paid tiers are all included on every WeiCity plan.

Share dialog illustration · the three dimensions are independent: named shares can expire, link shares can last forever

Control	WeiCity Drive	Typical mainstream personal plans
Link password	✓ on every plan	Not on Google personal; Dropbox needs Professional; OneDrive needs M365
Link expiry	✓ 1 / 7 / 30 days or never, on every plan	Not on Google personal
Named accounts / email	✓ recipients sign in, precise to the person; invite by email	Widely available, but often can't be combined with password and expiry
One-tap revoke · visit counts	✓ revoke and the link dies; every share shows its visit count	Revoke is common; counting varies
Allow editing	✓ named accounts can co-edit Office files online	Usually requires an account on the same platform

* Competitor capability notes are based on public materials as of July 2026; verify against official sources. Our pitch is the combination of password + expiry + named people + view-only + counting, not any single exclusive — don't claim "only WeiCity has password links".

DIFFERENCE ⑤

View-only, no download: they can look, but not take the original

Many drives have a "block download" switch that merely hides the button. WeiCity enforces it down to the byte: in restricted view, the original file's link never reaches the visitor at all.

Office / PDF: read-only rendering

Word, Excel, PowerPoint and PDF are rendered server-side as a read-only view with download, print and copy disabled; the bytes stay on the server and the visitor's browser never gets the original.

Photos / video / audio: proxied streaming

Media streams through the application proxy — no saveable direct link is handed out; seeking works and playback feels normal.

Covers the whole shared tree

Turn on "view online only" for a folder and every file at every level inside is restricted; the owner is never restricted and can switch downloads back on anytime.

ZIP download refused too

Restricted shares offer no ZIP packaging, so there's no "can't download one, but can download all" loophole; other types (archives, etc.) are greyed out as "view online only".

Say it like this

"They can only view online and can't take the original; Office and PDF have print and copy switched off too, photos and video stream through a proxy, and the original link never leaves." Combined with password, expiry and visit counts, that's lightweight DRM for your documents.

Don't say

"Absolutely copy-proof" or "digital rights management". View-only means the original file isn't provided; it cannot stop screenshots, photos of the screen or re-recording. Getting this right builds more trust, not less.

DIFFERENCE ⑥

Encrypted folders: even you need the password

Finance files, signed contracts, customer lists — put them in an encrypted folder and the password gate applies to everyone, including you. Most drives can only guard them with the account login.

A password gate per folder

Set a password on any folder; entering, downloading, previewing, uploading, moving and deleting all require unlocking first, and you stay unlocked for a while afterwards.

Search and the tree are gated too

Until unlocked, file names inside an encrypted folder never appear in search results, the folder tree or the "Recent" view — nothing leaks about what's inside.

The recycle bin is gated as well

Files deleted from an encrypted folder must be unlocked before they can be seen or restored in the recycle bin — the same applies if the whole folder is deleted.

Changing it needs the old password

Changing or removing a folder password requires the current one; once changed, old unlock sessions expire immediately.

Forgot it? Recover by email

A 6-digit code goes to the account's verified email; after verification you can reset or clear that folder's password — you're never locked out of your own files.

The gate travels with shares

Share a password-protected folder and visitors need the password too; change it and every old visitor is out.

Get the wording right: this is a "password gate" model, not end-to-end encryption — which is exactly why a forgotten password can be reset by email. If a customer asks "can you see my files?", answer plainly: files sit in private storage and every access uses a short-lived signed link; the password gate controls who may open the folder.

DIFFERENCES ⑦ ⑨

Files are not an island: chat, content and orders on one account

A standalone drive only stores. WeiCity Drive is wired into your whole WeiCity business — a file starts in Drive and goes straight into chat, into an article, into an order delivery, with no app switching and no re-uploading.

STORE
Drop it in Drive
Quotes, menus, courseware, assets — drag them in, up to 20GB per file.

SEND
Straight into chat
Pick a Drive file / folder in a DM or group; the link never auto-expires, revocable anytime.

USE
Into content & products
The same asset serves channel articles, galleries, videos and product pages — no second upload.

DELIVER
Hand over to clients
After the sale, share deliverables as "named account + view-only" and see how often they were opened.

KEEP
Relationship stays in-app
Customers reach you in one tap via the channel's "WeiCity Message"; follow-ups and files sit in the same thread.

Files in chat never auto-expire

What you send is a share link to the Drive file, not a copy that expires: while the file and share exist, it survives phone changes and stays openable however far back the group scrolls; sent by mistake, revoke it and the link dies. Against messengers' "file expired", this is a difference customers get instantly.

Customers reach you in one tap

The first item on every channel's contact card is in-app "WeiCity Message" — one tap opens a DM with you, zero setup. Sharing can also "notify by DM", dropping the link card straight into their chat.

Content and products share assets

Channel articles, galleries, video series and product pages live on the same account as Drive; paid content's text and video are gated server-side, so direct links don't leak.

"Shared with me", in one place

Everything shared to you sits under "Shared with me"; everything you sent out under "My shares" — who viewed, when it expires, whether to revoke, managed on one page.

In one line: the customer already runs a shop, publishes and chats on WeiCity — Drive is the answer to "and my files live in the same place too". A standalone drive can't offer that.

DIFFERENCE ⑧

Office in the browser, and the details that make it a joy

From the moment a file lands to opening, editing and recovering it — every everyday step happens in the browser, with nothing to install.

Office editing · original format, high fidelity

Open, edit and save Word / Excel / PowerPoint right in the browser; layout intact, no format conversion. Share to named accounts with "allow editing" and they can co-edit online.

Drag & drop · resumable

Drop files onto the page to upload; up to 20GB per file, big files go up in chunks with pause / resume and live progress — a network blip doesn't mean starting over.

Online preview · thumbnails

Photos, video, audio, PDF and text open instantly with no download; grid view shows image thumbnails, and browsing never touches the original file.

Batch & ZIP

Multi-select to download / move / delete; pack a whole folder into a ZIP that starts streaming instantly; visitors of a folder share can pack it too.

30-day recycle bin

Deleted by mistake? Restore within 30 days. Folders, rename, move, search and a "Recent" view are all built in.

Web · PWA · App

Use it in the browser, add it to the home screen like an app, or install the App for the best mobile experience; plans subscribe on the web via Stripe or inside the latest App.

One line for comparison: "No client to install, no format conversion — open Word in the browser, edit, and what you save is the original file."

HOW FILES ARE STORED, AND WHAT WE DON'T DO

Private storage, short-lived links, and an honest list of boundaries

Before customers trust you with important files they ask two things: "is it safe?" and "what can't you do?". Answering both clearly persuades more than a pile of adjectives.

Private storage + short-lived signed links

Files sit in a private storage container that is not open to the internet; every download / preview is issued a short-lived access link that expires — a forwarded link doesn't get the file.

Automatic tiering, frequent files open instantly

Frequently used files open at once; long-untouched files sink to cheaper tiers, and files unaccessed for over a year are archived — request retrieval and get a push when it's ready. That is what lets us price large capacity low.

Fair-use traffic allowance

No upload, download or traffic fees, but there is a fair-use monthly egress allowance (normal use never hits it); large-scale distribution or high-frequency downloads should be logged and passed to sales.

Provable notice records

Every retention-policy email is logged in a mail ledger (sent, delivered, bounced); when we promise "after repeated notices", we can produce the record.

Data export and cascading deletion

Personal data export is supported (including Drive and notice records); deleting the account cascades to Drive files, shares and related records.

A human to call

Local team, human support: z@wei.city, usually within 1 business day; enterprise customers needing contracts or dedicated support are logged and passed to sales.

Honest boundaries (not available today — and don't promise dates): desktop sync client · family sharing plans · full file version history · full-text search inside files · WebDAV / rclone · iPhone photo auto-backup. If a customer only needs a generic sync drive, advise them honestly to keep their current tool; WeiCity Drive's strengths are "sharing control + business integration + flexible capacity" — keep the pitch on those three.
Two more things not to blur: the platform publishes no specific uptime SLA, and support is not a 24/7 live chat.

Six questions customers always ask

Plan expired — my files?

Not deleted on the spot: excess turns read-only; only after 24 months with no plan and repeated notices may excess be reclaimed.

Upgrade mid-cycle — do I lose money?

No. Remaining time converts by price ratio; monthly → yearly is just picking yearly.

How do I cancel auto-renewal?

"Manage subscription" in the plans dialog; the paid period runs to its end, then space falls back to your other allowances. Cancelling ≠ refund.

Can I move down to a smaller plan?

Not directly: cancel, let the paid period end, then buy the smaller tier.

Does space stack?

No — the largest one counts: free space, plan or bonus. A 30GB bonus plus a 30GB plan is still 30GB.

Any traffic fees or hidden charges?

No upload, download or traffic fees; a fair-use egress allowance applies. Not "unlimited".

ONE-PAGE BENCHMARK

Six differences you can explain face to face

No "better at everything" claims — just differences that survive a customer checking on their phone. We're not afraid of the fact-check.

Aspect	WeiCity Drive	Typical mainstream drives
① Over quota	Excess is not deleted on the spot: files turn read-only and stay retrievable. Only after 24 months with no active plan, and multiple notices, may the portion above the available space be reclaimed — files within it and the account itself are untouched, and any active plan makes this clause moot	Google's official policy: over quota for 2+ years, your content may be deleted, and email sending is affected
② Capacity & price	Seven sizes, 30GB–10TB, by real usage; promo codes on 512GB+	Big jumps between sizes mean paying for unused space
③ Sharing controls	Named accounts, password, expiry, allow download / allow editing, one-tap revoke, visit counts — the full set on every plan	Password links: not on Google personal, Dropbox needs Professional, OneDrive needs M365; link expiry: not on Google personal
⑤ Files in chat	Send Drive files / folders inside built-in chat: never auto-expire, revocable, permission-controlled	Messenger files expire in days; drive products have no chat at all
⑥ A human to call	Local team with human support (z@wei.city, usually within 1 business day); big-volume needs get a custom plan	On big-tech personal plans, a human is nearly impossible to reach

Lead with three values: ① sharing control is complete (audience, expiry, password, download / editing — one form, every plan) · ② files connect to the WeiCity business (chat, content, product pages, client delivery) · ③ capacity is flexible (seven sizes from 30GB, first-year promo codes on 512GB+, 20TB+ negotiable).
In one line: we're not a "cheaper Google Drive" — we're the drive that knows how to share: sharing control, social integration, and a data promise.

* Competitor capability notes are based on public materials and official policy pages as of July 2026; verify against official sources for updates.

FOUR CUSTOMERS, FOUR STORIES

Match the story to the customer

Each story is a combination of real features — nothing oversold, nothing promised. Open with one question: "How do you send files to your customers today?"

🏪 SME owner: quotes, menus, contracts, deliverables

Pain: files go feral once sent — quotes get forwarded around, and outdated versions keep circulating.

The WeiCity way: park the quote in Drive → share it with password + expiry + view-only → the client views free of any sign-up and visit counts show it was seen; new version? revoke the old link and send a fresh one; after the sale, deliver files to a named account. Others often reserve this for paid tiers; WeiCity includes it on every plan.

🎓 Creator / training provider: courseware, video, materials

Pain: materials get freeloaded, students change groups and lose the files, and a dead laptop takes everything with it.

The WeiCity way: keep courseware and video in Drive, share per class to named accounts + view-only; the same assets feed channel articles, galleries and paid video series; 20GB per file and resumable upload handle big videos; the 30-day recycle bin catches mistakes.

💬 WeiCity user: that group-chat file expired again

Pain: files in common messengers expire within days — important documents get re-sent over and over.

The WeiCity way: send the Drive file in chat — the link never auto-expires, survives phone changes, and can be revoked if sent wrong. The 30GB starter is RM35 a year, and upgrading is one tap: fix "sending files" once and for all.

🗄️ Big-volume customer: an archive from a few hundred GB to 10TB

Pain: mainstream drives jump from 400GB to 2TB, paying for space you won't use; big tiers aren't cheap monthly, and going over quota feels like a deletion risk.

The WeiCity way: 512GB / 1TB / 2TB and up bought as needed; yearly billing ≈ pay 10 months, use 12, and first-time buyers can use a consultant code; over quota is not deleted on the spot (uploads pause, excess turns read-only, and only after 24 months with no active plan may the excess be reclaimed); 20TB+ is logged for a tailored quote.

An opener that works: "Once you've sent a quote to a customer, can you still control it? Files sent from WeiCity Drive stay in your hands — password, expiry, download or not, how many times it was opened. 30GB is RM35 a year, and for bigger plans my promo code gets you a better first-year price."
